EARLY MORNING FIRES
CAUSES $5,000 DAMAGE
The garage and two automobiles and also part of the greenhouse owned by John J. Gagnon of Ocean Avenue, New London, were destroyed by a fire that broke out about 2:40 o'clock Wednesday morning. The origin of the fire has not been determined. The fire was discovered by Mrs. L. D. Dunn who told her husband and he in turn ran to the Gagnon home and awakened Mr. Gagnon. In the meantime a telephone call was sent in by the night nurses at the Lawrence Memorial Hospital. The fire department responded but the garage and cars were a total loss as was part of a greenhouse located near the garage. Later in the morning an automobile truck owned by Richard Woodworth caught fire and was practically destroyed. It is thought that the truck caught from sparks from the Gagnon fire. The loss was estimated at about $5,000.

DIED
HILBERT—In Battle, Nov. 2, 1922, Mrs. Andrew Hilbert.
Notice of funeral hereafter.

REV. B. M. BRIDGES
GIVES FACTS IN HIS CASE
It is doubtful if there has ever been a medicine endorsed by so many ministers of the Gospel as has Tangle. Indeed, there is scarcely a faith, creed or denomination in all the land in which one, or more, of the clergymen do not publicly express their indebtedness to the Premier Preparation for the benefits they have derived from its use.

One of the latest to speak out in this connection is Rev. B. M. Bridges, a widely known and beloved Baptist preacher, residing at Mooreboro, N. C., whose statement follows:

"Tangle has given me a good appetite, toned up my system and renewed my strength in such a gratifying way that I am glad to recommend it to anyone who is in a run down condition. For ten years past I have had such a severe case of indigestion that I could not find anything to eat that agreed with me. Finally I became very nervous and could get but very little sleep."

"It seems that I took nearly everything trying to get myself right, but nothing helped me until I ran across Tangle. My nerves are so much better now that my appetite is sound and refreshing. I enjoy my meals and have also gained weight. I can say from experience that Tangle is a splendid medicine and tonic, for it has built me up wonderfully."

Tangle is sold by all good druggists.

BELIEVES WOMEN SHOULD SUPPORT REPUBLICAN PARTY
"I believe that the republican party should have the confidence and support of the women of the state," said Mrs. A. A. Alcorn of New London, a member of the state commission on civil welfare, in an interview given out Wednesday. "In order to further the work done by the last legislature and especially in regard to the juvenile court action—taking children out of the criminal class and giving them a separate hearing, entirely dissociating them with a criminal record. The hearing now before the judge is made like a family conference, and having attended quite a few of these hearings, I do know that not only the welfare of the child but the community was concerned by the form of legislation. Not only has the child's welfare been safeguarded in the hearing and in the commitment, but a girl sent to Long Lane Farm is no longer branded with the stigma of a criminal of a penal institution, but merely sent to a school for development and advancement in the next legislature and we are safeguarded by keeping the republican party in power to continue this work. I believe that the women are safeguarded the welfare and health of the youth of the state."

WILL GIVE DINNER FOR 100 BOYS

Rubber, as it is used in the manufacture of overalls and boots was the topic of an interesting talk given by Herbert H. O'Neill of New London, district representative of the United States Rubber company, at the noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club at the Wauregan hotel on Wednesday.

O'Neill, who has spoken before the club before, told of the discovery of rubber soon after Columbus discovered America and how the use for this material has developed through the centuries especially in the manufacture of rubber footwear.

The speaker, however, was unable to tell of the world's rubber output is used.

Mr. O'Neill reviewed the history of the rubber industry which practically originated in New England and the development of the industry in Connecticut through the efforts of Goodyear and Wales. He dwelt largely on the manufacture of the ordinary rubber footwear, how the rubber is collected, cured, shipped to this country and then refined and manufactured. In connection with his talk Mr. O'Neill showed many specimens of the various grades of rubber that come to this country from Brazil, Ceylon and Africa and other countries where it is grown. He also showed several of the old fashioned rubber trees that were manufactured when the industry was in its infancy.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. O'Neill was given a rising vote of thanks.

COLCHESTER CONCRETE PIKE
DESCRIBED BY MAGAZINE
The new turnpike through Colchester, connecting New London and Hartford, is described in the October number of the Concrete Highway Magazine. The article follows:

The new New England's longest concrete road, the Hartford-New London turnpike, has opened up to the citizens of Connecticut as well as to visiting tourists a delightful country of unusual historic interest.

As the motorist glides over the even concrete surface he passes landmarks with historical interest extending back to the days before the Revolution and to the joyment of his drive over a perfect highway is added the charm of a visit to a region important in the early development of New England.

The Hartford-New London turnpike was first built in the year 1800 when wages were fixed at "68 cents for 10 hours and for each team equal to two oxen of milking cows worked by plow, 66 cents for 10 hours in the spring and summer but at all other seasons of the year 34 cents."

After more than a hundred years of travel over the old highway of dirt and gravel with grades as steep as 18 per cent, the state highway department entered into an agreement with the federal government to rebuild the turnpike.

The new turnpike, which has shortened the time of travel between Hartford and New London, reduced all grades to a maximum of 10 per cent and provided an even, all weather surface of concrete.

Starting at the capitol in the city of Hartford, the motorist proceeds to and across Connecticut Boulevard, turns south to the town of Litchfield and then east for a distance of two miles to the beginning of the new 33-mile stretch of concrete road. The rise is gradual for a distance of about one mile, where the concrete surface is reached. Here one should stop and climb up into the Crown's Nest, from which, on a clear day, one can see Mt. Mansfield, Mt. Monadnock, and the hills 100 miles away.

Nearer at hand, Hartford, Wethersfield and the winding Connecticut river may be seen. Beyond this point the road winds its way through a beautiful landscape of rolling hills, where deep cuts and high fills indicate the work required to widen and straighten the highway. When the original road was built in 1800, it was considered an engineering feat of considerable magnitude to break a path wide enough for a carriage to travel in safety. Tarramugus Lake, named after one of the chiefs of the Mohegan Indians, is just before reaching Marlborough Four Corners.

The Tavern, now the summer home of Miss Mary Hall, is located at Marlborough Four Corners. Miss Hall is a prominent social worker in New London. The Tavern is more than 200 years old. Presidents George Washington and Andrew Jackson dined there on more than one occasion. On the third floor is a Guard Room where prisoners were frequently kept. Jack Hale, the present superintendent of the grounds, was employed at the Tavern during the Civil War. He will tell the traveler many interesting tales.

Just beyond the top of the next hill is the Congregational church built in 1842 by Augustus Tresselt. The church is a fine example of Gothic architecture. Parn Brook is passed and the top of Clark's Hill is reached over a 9 per cent grade. Ryan Villa is at the left. This farm of 1,000 acres was purchased in 1798 from the Mohegans by Mr. Carrier, a French soldier of fortune. John C. Ryan purchased the property in 1878 and left it to his daughter, Mrs. Ryan, who now lives in the house. The rear part of which was built as early as 1725.

Entering Colchester, the motorist will notice a small house on the right under the gables of which is a tablet marked 1700. This is the site of the first house built. While the shingles and clapboards are comparatively new, the original beams and joists are preserved. This house was built by Nathaniel Dill, a goldsmith and silversmith, who received a grant from Wyanec, a Sachem of the Mohegan Indians. The town in Colchester was laid by Foothills in 1680. The first church, the Congregational church, was organized the same year. Bacon academy, the gift of Pierpont Bacon, was built in 1880 for "reading, writing, english, arithmetic, mathematics and all branches of learning."

Endowments now amount to $100,000 besides building and equipment. In 1900 the school was burned and the new building, valued at $100,000, was founded an industry which expanded from $100,000 to an output of $2,000,000.

Near Colchester the concrete highway winds in a southeasterly direction through Salem and ends at present in the town of Waterford. It will be extended by the city of New London and the state highway department to within half a mile of the Mohican hotel in New London. The new highway involved the removal of 118,074 cubic yards of dirt, 18,566 cubic yards of rock and the placing of 7,288 cubic yards of portland cement concrete for the road surface.

The improvement of this highway has shortened the time of travel between Hartford and New London and has shortened the distance between New London and Hartford by about 30 miles and dovetailed the planning of the new highway of Rhode Island and Connecticut. The improvement of this road with enduring concrete will still further increase the attractiveness of a highway already rich in historic interest and now occupying a definite place in Connecticut's scheme of highway transportation.

REPORTED TO CITY UNION

ON K. D. STATE CONVENTION
The meeting of the Norwich City Union of the King's Daughters was held Wednesday night at the Community House with a good attendance, the president, Mrs. L. D. Packer, presiding.

The meeting opened with the singing of Abide With Me, following which there was a devotional service led by Rev. Alvin Bondchuck, pastor of the First Congregational church. This was followed by the roll call, seven societies reporting.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary Mrs. Minnie Blackledge and with the report of the treasurer, Miss Hattie Carter, were accepted.

Mrs. Packer announced her selections for the committee on resolutions to include Mrs. Ezekiel Perkins, Mrs. Lucy Perkins and Miss Hyde.

The next number on the program was a solo by Miss Madeline Wright, who was accompanied by Miss Olive Linton, pianist.

Mrs. Packer then gave her report of the state convention held at Plymouth Congregational church, New Haven, on October 18 and 19, describing the activities of the convention during its two days' session.

During the convention the most interesting action taken during the convention, she said, was when Mrs. Henry Peabody of Boston, speaking at the Center church, raised $1,500 in 15 minutes to be given to the Y. M. C. A. Women's College of the Orient. The delegates also had opportunity to inspect the Center church, the oldest in New Haven, which has been constructed over a solid burnt brick foundation of the old. Some of the graves, said Mrs. Packer, were dated 1650, and the latest was 1812. The delegates also enjoyed a sightseeing tour through the various important buildings of Yale university.

Following a report by the committee on resolutions the meeting was adjourned at 9 o'clock.

AT BROADWAY THEATRE

"The Mascot"
The Broadway theatre opened its season of special attractions by presenting The Mascot on Wednesday evening with a cast put on by the Casino Producing Co. It had about half a house and made a disappointing first number for the season as the company was only of moderate ability in musical equipment or stage presence, although the principals and chorus worked earnestly and persistently to entertain the house and were rewarded with some applause. This came for the first time in the history of the theatre.

Following a report by the committee on resolutions the meeting was adjourned at 9 o'clock.

ROSELAND OPENING NIGHT
HAS PRETTY FEATURES
Over one hundred and fifty couples attended the opening dance at Roseland Wednesday evening, the opening night, and enjoyed the pleasure to the limit of the popular dance numbers rendered by the orchestra.

Norwich's new dance hall was prettily decorated for the occasion, the stage having put plants, with garlands of roses, lilies and carnations that added greatly to the effect. The interior of the hall is finished off in white with etchings of blue and gold, and the decorations on the walls being set off to best advantage under the newly installed lighting system.

The dance hall is located on the second floor of the building while on the second floor of the building is a refreshment room, the last named being in charge of Fred Swatsburg and Charles McGilberry.

During the first dance under the management of Michael D'Atta and Roseland Amusement company there were several features, one being a midnight wait, another a novelty dance when the dancers covered the hall with streamers of various hues. Announcement was also made that an exhibition of fancy dancing would soon be given.

Those who attended the opening of Roseland predicted success for the season.

FRACTURED HIP WREN
POLE FELL ON HIM
William Dill, of 119 North Main street, an employee of the Norwich Gas and Electrical department, is a patient at the Backus hospital suffering from a fractured hip received Tuesday afternoon when a pole fell on him while he was climbing it to work among the wires.

Before going up the pole Mr. Dill and his companion, Frank Rogers, attached the pole and it seemed as they started to climb. Suddenly the pole snapped throwing Mr. Rogers to the ground and striking Mr. Dill, causing the injury to his hip. Superintendent Charles W. Taggart immediately went to the scene and had the injured man conveyed to the hospital where he now lies.

The people in that section of the city were left without lights until a new pole could be set.

Mr. Dill's injury although painful is not expected to be serious. He will be laid up for some time.
